DRAW GAMES.

The Inter-Island Chess Games by Wireless a Stand-off.

According to the Star, the Hilo-Honolulu chess games by wireless are beginning to look like drawn games. In both of them the playing is now far advanced and in the first game it is practically assured that neither side can win. The moves, carried on by wireless between the clubs here and in Honolulu, have slowly cleared off the board with honors even until both sides are helpless unless an error is made, which does not seem likely on either side.

The second game is not yet so far advanced as the other and there is a chance for a decisive result. Some of the players are inclined to think Hilo has the better positions in this contest, but the Honolulu people figure that they will come out alright. Both games have been carefully played, and have shown that there is much skill at both ends.

The games are still watched with interest by a number of players, and may lead to an open tournament, which is considered much better than games played at a distance. In the regular games pieces must be played on the board, without previous handling, while in contests by mail or telegraph, contestants may play several moves ahead and make all sorts of experiments. Hence the difficulty of obtaining a decisive result.

The next meeting of the Hilo Chess Club is this evening at the home of J. C. Ridgway, Puaeo.

Approved by the Court.

CHICKEN THIEF ESCAPES.

A Chinese Suspect Gives Police the Slip at Edge of Town.

Comfortably seated astride his horse and believing he was leading to justice the Chinese who has been robbing Hilo's hen roosts, Philip Kumalae, a policeman at Keanan marches to town only to find that his captive had cut the rope and had taken to the tall woods. Leong Pong, a Chinese gambler and character well known in police circles, was found on Saturday last at Keanan trying to dispose of a quantity of chickens at 40 cents apiece. He was reaping a harvest among Porto Rican purchasers, when policeman Kumalae appeared and took his stock in custody, together with his stock of nine hens. Handcuffed and tied by a rope to the pommel of his saddle, Kumalae started to lead his prisoner to Hilo. Kumalae made his prisoner walk and carry the load of chickens as evidence against him. When nearing Waiakua about 12 o'clock noon, the policeman was awakened from his reverie by discovering that there was no John Chinaman at the end of his rope. He bravely fired his revolver in the air three times and then reported the escape to Deputy Sheriff Pether.

Immediately Capt. Pether with a squad of officers repaired to the spot on the Volcano road, where Kumalae said the Chinaman escaped, but with the aid of the dogs was unable to run him down. The Chinaman still wears the Department bracelets and it is said was seen at No. 2 Camp, Waiakua manka, Monday night.

The proceedings are brought against the Owl Drug Co., Ltd., a corporation, and against A. C. McKeeney, C. E. Wright, H. Vicars, George H. Williams and A. H. Jackson, the latter gentlemen being endorers of notes of the corporation. Notice of sale is given for November 7th. Directors of the company, when seen by a TRIBUNE representative, assert that the assets of the concern are sufficient to meet this and other liabilities, but under the circumstances those most deeply interested in the company did not feel justified in carrying on the business further.
